WORLD DISARMAMENT CALL IN UNO GENERAL ASSEMBLY BY MOLTOV OUTLAW ATOMIC WARFARE APPEAL

WARNING AGAINST THE ELIMINATION OF VETO

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—THE SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER, M. VYACHESLAV MOLTOV, TO-DAY CALLED FOR WORLD DISARMAMENT AND THE OUTLAWING OF ATOMIC WARFARE IN THE MAJOR STATEMENT ON RUSSIAN POLICY BEFORE THE UNITED NATIONS GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

"It is already time for universal disarmament," said M. Molotov, and urged that the General Assembly recommend that the Security Council find a means for general disarmament and that all United Nations governments should co-operate in disarmament.

M. Molotov accused elements in the United States and Britain of wishing to undermine the United Nations with a campaign to force revision of the veto rule. He warned that elimination of the veto power would mean the complete collapse of the United Nations.

He bitterly attacked the former British Prime Minister, Mr. Winston Churchill, and other "imperialistic interests" both in the United States and in Britain.

M. Molotov said members of the Security Council had shifted responsibility in not taking action against France, but on the other hand had made a great mistake in not removing the Persian question from the agenda after both parties to the dispute had asked that this be done.

He renewed condemnation of the presence of British troops in Greece and renewed the Russian demand for an accounting of Allied forces in non-enemy countries.

Information Wanted

"Every member of the United Nations should furnish information about naval and military bases in friendly countries, as well as the number and location of forces," M. Molotov said. He declared that Russia was ready to co-operate with complete information on Russian troop dispositions and demanded to know why other nations should refuse to do likewise. He added that Russia could see no reason for hiding such information.

The Minister warned that the United Nations must not repeat the mistakes of the League of Nations which, he said, had no way of handling serious problems. He said the little nations' drive to revise the veto rule was a campaign against the unity of the great Powers and he labelled the rebellion among little nations as a reactionary campaign aimed directly at the Soviet Union. He said advocates of Charter revision were trying to shake the foundations of the United Nations and to clear the way for countries sharing their principles.

He accused some advocates of atomic diplomacy of trying to dominate other countries. He said it were not for these atomic diplomats, the way would be clear for peaceful co-operation among the United Nations.

Referring to Stalin's answers to questions by Hugh Baillie, President of the United Press, M. Molotov said Stalin had just made the position of the Soviet Union clear—that the secret atom bomb would not always be secret and that the atom bomb could not resolve the outcome of war.

Atomic Energy
The Baruch plan for control of atomic energy, submitted by the United States, was described by Molotov as egotistic and he charged that it was designed to maintain a monopoly on atomic energy.

The Soviet representative warned that the atom bomb could be developed by other nations too. People such as Mr. Churchill, declared M. Molotov, believed only in methods of force and domination. He added that co-operation was becoming increasingly difficult because of the reactionary attitude of such people.

The Soviet Minister said it was impossible to believe that the Americans were partners in the plan for domination and expressed confidence that the Americans wanted real peace.

He said Russia was now rebuilding and her speed and efficiency would show the soundness of the principles on which the Soviet system was founded. He declared that Russia had confidence in her own strength.

The first speaker to-day was Faris El Khouri, head of the Syrian delegation. He said the Security Council's settlement of the Syria-Lebanon case—the Council last February discussed the presence of British and French troops in the Levant, which were later withdrawn.

NATIONALISTS LAUNCH DRIVE AGAINST CHEFOO

Nanking, Oct. 29.—The Government forces are launching all-out attacks against Chefoo and other strategic points on the Shantung peninsula in one of the most savage battles in recent months as the Communists are reinforcing the garrison across the Gulf of Chilli in miscellaneous small craft, according to the Chinese press.

The Communist convoys are said to be escorted by two small Japanese destroyers, and one message spoke of a pitched battle between a Government warship and the destroyers.

The situation in Chefoo is still obscure and there is no confirmation of an earlier report of street fighting in the port.

Meanwhile, Gen. Tu Yu-ming, the Commander-in-Chief of the Government armies in Manchuria, has flown to Antung on a visit which is currently believed to be connected with the Nationalist offensive towards Dairen.

Gen. Tu Yu-ming, Chief of Staff of the Nationalist branch of the Peiping Executive Headquarters, denied reports published in Shanghai that troops of Gen. Tu Yu-ming had opened a drive on Dairen.

He said "obviously" this was false since Dairen is jointly controlled by China and Russia.

The Communist and American branches of Executive Headquarters said they had no reports that such a drive had begun. They pointed out that if the Nationalists had opened a drive aimed at Dairen, the Executive Headquarters field team at Anshan, which is the closest point of such a drive, would have reported to the Peiping headquarters. They emphasised that no such report had been received.

Pushing southwards along the northern section of the Peiping-Hankow Railway, Government troops have by-passed the town of Heishan, only 15 miles north-west of Communist-besieged Paoing.

Electricity Cuts In Britain

London, Oct. 29.—Cuts in electricity covering nearly all Britain were imposed to-day as a result of the critical coal shortage and widespread use of electric fires on cold autumn mornings which has affected the working on all sections of electrified Southern Railway network.

The main lines from Southampton, Portsmouth and the South Coast were among others immobilised for about ten minutes due to reduction of power affecting the electrical signalling system and electrically operated points. According to a Southern Railway spokesman, all trains normally have to stop until the current is restored to full power. The cut which was the biggest of the autumn so far meant that thousands of householders had cold breakfasts, cold houses, no shaving water and no radio-housewives in some parts of the country being without current for one and a quarter hours.—Reuter.

TRIESTE DOCKERS' STRIKE ENDS

Trieste, Oct. 29 (UP).—The dock workers' strike was broken to-day as 2,700 workers returned to the jobs.

The walk-out yesterday had halted the unloading of nine ships in the city's biggest port. The workers left their jobs in protest against the AMG hiring of refugee labour from Istria.

The strikers returned to their jobs to-day without presenting any formal demands or entering into any negotiations over the 30 refugee workers whose employment was the cause of the strike.

ARMED GUARDS PREVENT MEXICAN PLANE TAKING OFF

Mexico City, Oct. 29.—Armed guards to-day prevented an aircraft of the Mexican-owned airline, Aerovias Braniff, from taking off.

This followed an order from the Ministry of Communications suspending the company's flights in Mexico on the ground that the Compania Mexicana Aviation, Pan-American Airways subsidiary was already adequately serving the Braniff routes.

The Vice-President of Braniff declared to-day that this was a Pan-American attempt to retain control of Mexico's air and added that an injunction had been obtained, giving temporary permission to resume flights. He further said that the case "will be fought as far as the Supreme Court if a permanent operating permit is not given."—Reuter.

ARCULLI ACQUITTED OF FOUR COUNTS

F. M. el Arculli, journalist, was acquitted of four of the seven counts against him under the Defence Regulations at the Criminal Sessions this morning.

The four counts concerned the Crown's allegation that Arculli gave information which resulted in the arrest of Dr. Taang Yau-ho, Denis Victor, V. V. Needa and Ho Chi-wing.

Mr. A. P. Rajah, for the Defence, successfully submitted, at the conclusion of the Prosecution's case, that there was no evidence in-

BRITISH CARGO SHIP FOUNDERS

London, Oct. 29.—Four members of the crew are believed to have lost their lives when a British cargo ship, Stanburn, founded off the Tunisian coast. It was reported here to-day. The ship was caught in a storm on her way from Algiers to Tunisia to collect a cargo of phosphates.

Signals received at Sfax said that she had sustained serious damage and was sinking. The remainder of the crew were saved.—Reuter.

identifying that Arculli did give information for the arrest of these four persons.

Sir Henry Blackall, Chief Justice, before whom the case is being heard, pointed out the only evidence against Arculli in respect of these four charges was that Arculli was present in a room, in which were the Japanese OC of the Eastern Section Condemnerie, the Gendarme Sergeant and a Japanese interpreter, when the order for the arrest of these men was given by the OC.

The Court adjourned to consider Mr. Rajah's submission regarding counts five and seven, which allege that Arculli induced Denis Victor and Ho Chi-wing to divulge information concerning espionage activities.

London Cold Storage Dockmen Strike

London, Oct. 29 (UP).—The strike of London cold storage dockmen entered the second day to-day and threatened to spread before nightfall to include more than 1,000 workers.

Already 750 men are out and meetings are scheduled for this afternoon to discuss bringing out the rest. Although the meat supply is not yet hit, it is feared the strike will cripple distribution if prolonged. The strike began yesterday over the fact that one warehouse hired

Greek Leftists Open Predicted Offensive

Athens, Oct. 29.—Apparently accurate reports from Thessaly appearing in all Athens newspapers to-day indicate that Leftist bands have opened their predicted offensive intended to seize several towns as bases for winter operations.

The villagers of Grevena, in western Macedonia, poured out of church yesterday to give battle to Ypsilantis, Greek ex-school master guerrilla chieftain, who attacked the village with 200 heavily-armed men, according to reports reaching here to-day.

The villagers drove off the rebels, killing 47 for the loss of six of their own men.

In the same area, Ypsilantis' lieutenant known as "Capt. Gogou" was killed by a woman of the village of Khlion, who snatched his Tommy-gun from him and shot him, the reports said.

The Communist newspaper, Rizospastis, which can be considered authoritative on this subject, says the Leftists were believed to be making a major attempt to take Grevena as a winter redoubt.

The heaviest fighting yesterday was in the hills north of Grevena where a strong Greek Army force clashed with a band estimated at 1,000 resulting in 47 bandits being killed. An unknown number of soldiers were killed and wounded.

Three hundred guerrillas at the village of St. Anargiri on the road to Grevena were scattered by armed villagers, leaving 18 dead and 40 wounded. Press reports said 40 guerrillas lost three women and two men killed.—United Press and Reuter.

Cabinet Difficulties
Athens, Oct. 29.—Full confidence in the Greek Prime Minister, Constantinos Tsaldaris, was expressed to-day by the parliamentary members of the Royalist People's Party after a three hour meeting, at which the Premier reported on his unsuccessful negotiations for a broader cabinet.

A statement issued afterwards said the parliamentary majority will not accept any premier in a Coalition Cabinet other than our own leader—Tsaldaris.

The meeting also approved the future programme of the cabinet which was submitted by Mr. Tsaldaris to the opposition leaders during negotiations.—Reuter.

Mayor Killed
London, Oct. 29 (UP).—The Exchange Telegraph's Athens correspondent reported to-day that 47 bandits had been killed in a clash with Greek military forces at the village of Anargiri, in Western Macedonia, during which Anargiri's Mayor and three inhabitants also were killed.

The bandits were reported to have been led in an Anargiri attack by Captain Ypsilantis.

Thirty bandits were reported killed in clashes in three other villages in the same region.

World-Wide Reaction To Stalin's Statement

CHURCHILL URGES DISCLOSURE OF ALL MILITARY FORCES

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Mr. Winston Churchill, Britain's war-time Premier, to-day replied to Marshal Josef Stalin's statement that Russia has sixty divisions in the West, and declared that his (Churchill's) reference to two hundred Soviet divisions had not been contradicted in the House of Commons. He urged that the "fullest disclosure" of all military forces should be made at the present meeting of the United Nations.

Even the figure given out by the Russians of sixty divisions, Mr. Churchill declared, would greatly exceed the British and United States forces in European enemy-occupied territory, and it did not include Rumania nor "heavy" Soviet concentrations in Leningrad and Odessa.

Mr. Churchill made no reference to Marshal Stalin's personal remark comparing the ex-British Premier and those who think like him, to "incendiaries of a new war."

From his country home in Westham, Kent, Mr. Churchill said: "I have regard and respect for Premier Stalin and always remember all we went through together, and I also wish to see the Russian people who fought so bravely for their native land, safe, glorious and happy."

"It was always my desire that when the war was won the Soviet Government should play one of the leading parts in the rebuilding of our shattered world. By the Anglo-Russian treaty made when I was Prime Minister in 1941 we are bound not to interfere in each other's internal affairs or system of society."

Exceeds UK Force

"Therefore I do not see why we cannot all be friends and help each other and thus advance the whole basic standard of livelihood of the broad masses of people in every land. I am glad to see Premier Stalin's statement about Russian forces in the occupied territories, but even sixty divisions on a war footing would, of course, greatly exceed the British and American forces in enemy occupied territory, in Europe."

"I asked His Majesty's Government whether a total of 200 divisions applied to the West and I asked the question in such a form that it could be 'yes' or 'no'."

"Considering the differences between 200 divisions and 60 divisions it ought to have been possible, if I was in error, for a contradiction to be given. None was forthcoming. On the contrary the statement of the Prime Minister and the Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs showed only anxiety at the strength of the great mobilised forces. No one would have been more pleased than I to be told that I was misinformed. No one will be more pleased if this proves to be the case."

Facts Must Be Known

"It is clearly most important that the facts should be made known. It is difficult to believe that the Allies occupying together enemy territory recently gained with their blood should not know about the strength of each other's garrisons. One would have thought they would have interchanged and shared this duty between themselves as a matter of course and that there would be reciprocal inspection of forces mobilised in their respective zones."

"We hear a great deal about suspicions. Nothing sweeps away suspicions like facts and I consider it my duty to continue to press for facts. I should add that my information, which of course, is not official information, contemplated a strength of 10,000 men per division. During the last war the American and British divisions sometimes ran as high as 30,000 or 50,000 men and 30,000 would be a fairly good average figure including of course, auxiliary services, corps troops and lines of communication.

"It is not possible to judge the strength of an Army unless not only the number of organised divisions is known but also, and at the same time the total ration strength. It seems to me that the clearing up of this matter would be highly beneficial from every point of view and surely the present meetings of the UNO and Security Council should be the occasion for the fullest and fairest disclosure of all military forces that may cause concern to any of those who fought and won."

Reuter's Diplomatic Correspondent adds that it is still unlikely that the British Government will comment officially on Mr. Churchill's open assumption that the failure of any Government spokesman to give his assertion that there are 200 Soviet divisions in Eastern Europe implies a sort of confirmation.

An equally important aspect of Generalissimo Stalin's latest statement is its bearing on the discussions about Germany due to take place at the New York meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers on November 20, the correspondent adds.

In theory the Foreign Ministers appear to be able to start with an unusual amount of common ground between them.

Marshal Stalin has indicated that, like Mr. Ernest Bevin and Mr. James Byrnes, he believes that the economic unity of the unfilled provisions of Potsdam must be re-introduced. Germany though "equally necessary," the Soviet emphasis on the need for political unity in Germany is not new, though Mr. Byrnes incurred a certain amount of criticism from Moscow when he made a similar suggestion at Stuttgart on September 6.

Already Emphasised
Marshal Stalin also indicated he believes agreement on the level of German industry, which was reached in March 1946, must be reviewed and revised. This has recently been emphasised by Mr. Bevin and Mr. Byrnes.

On the face of it there is not much difference between "the creation of some sort of central administration to be placed in the hands of the Germans themselves," which Marshal Stalin would support, and official information, contemplated a

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS DEBATE IN COMMONS

London, Oct. 29.—The important debate on the freedom of the press, in which Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, one of the leading British prosecutors at Nuremberg, and Mr. Herbert Morrison, Lord President of the Council, will be the chief speakers, opened in the House of Commons to-day.

Over 100 Labour Members have demanded an official inquiry in the following terms: "Having regard to increasing public concern at the growth of monopolistic tendencies in control of the press and free expression of opinion through the press and the greatest practicable accuracy in the presentation of news, this House considers that a Royal Commission should be appointed to inquire into the finance, control, management and ownership of the press."

As this subject cuts across Party lines and has aroused the widest interest the Government have decided that if this motion was challenged they would leave the issue to be decided by a free vote of the House, which means that the Government would not be bound by Party discipline.

The first speaker, Mr. Haydn Davies (Labour), who is a professional journalist, began by saying that the question was not being raised at the behest of Mr. Herbert Morrison with the idea of muzzling the press, curtailing its freedom, or because the Government wanted to nationalise the press. He wished to assure the House that the resolution before it was being discussed, by branches of the non-political National Union of Journalists before the last general election, so it had nothing to do with the present Government.

Declaring that 23 of the Union's members were Members of Parliament, Mr. Davies added: "It is a resolution by journalists because they believe in the freedom of the press. From inside we know more of the press."

JAP LABOUR USED TO LOAD SHIPS IN SINGAPORE

Singapore, Oct. 29.—The continued insistence by the 7,000 striking wharf workers for a daily rice ration of approximately twelve times that of an ordinary individual rice ration here has aroused suspicion in the minds of some authorities that certain elements are concerned with the stoppage and do not wish to see the dispute settled.

Rice supply and munition ships are being worked by Japanese labour but work on ordinary merchant ships is described as negligible owing to the lack of winchmen.

The strikers' representatives were informed at this morning's meeting with the harbour authorities that it was useless to continue the negotiations unless this demand was abandoned and they were advised to make this point clear to the strikers.

The wharf workers' official union still remains aloof from the dispute and the group conducting negotiations on behalf of the strikers consists of a strike committee composed of genuine wharf workers, who are accompanied by non-wharf workers described as "advisers."

It is stated that the advisers do all the talking in the discussions with the harbour authorities.—Reuter.

KOREANS' CLAIM SLIGHT IN JAP ANTI-CRIME DRIVE

Tokyo, Oct. 29 (UP).—SCAP officials are investigating the charge by Koreans residing here that they allegedly were victims of a subtle crime prevention campaign conducted by the Japanese police, who are described as "advisers."

The Koreans said the central motif of the poster design is the Yingyang symbol—the national emblem of Korea.

Some Koreans were so bitterly aroused that they were preparing to march to the Ueno police station in protest. The Korean liaison office, however, dissuaded them, pointing out that if violence resulted the blame would immediately fall upon Koreans.

One SCAP official contended that use of the simulated Yingyang symbol may have been a coincidence without ulterior motive. The design is highly decorative: a circle split into two parts by a curving line. It is also an ancient Chinese symbol.

Occupation officials promised the Koreans the situation would be thoroughly investigated.

Koreans passing the Ueno district have been tearing the posters from walls. Three placards have been turned over to the liaison office. One is in the possession of the United Press.

The lower left hand corner of the poster reads: "Sponsored by the Ueno Police Station and Ueno Crime Prevention Association. The four huge Kan characters in red printed on the right hand side read: 'Beware of thefts.'"

The poster depicts a hairy hand clutching a door and a devil dressed in black brandishing a knife over a quivering Japanese girl. The action takes place within the circle of the Yingyang symbol.

The Present And Future Of Bermuda

(This is the last of a series of three articles on the present conditions and future prospects in Bermuda by William Hardcastle, Reuter's Special Correspondent.)

PEOPLE who knew the delightful "uncivilised" Bermuda of the nineteen-thirties complain that the war and the "invasion" of American soldiers and sailors that it brought—left the island with such "evils" of civilisation as motorcars and votes for women.

Motor cars—or rather ten-wheeled lorries—broke on the horridly bumpy roads of the island shortly after Roosevelt and Churchill had settled the famous "destroyer" deal. The men who built the huge naval and air bases at either end of the narrow island brought bulldozers, lorries and cars to help them—and an island which before had banned every form of road vehicle above the horse carriage and bicycle had its first taste of modern transportation.

Only this year has a law been passed which allows residents to have cars on the island but strictly controls their size and power. Passenger cars may not be of more than ten horse power; lorries must conform to certain maximum measurements (which exclude the majority of American types as presently produced); and all other types are banned from the road—or will be by the end of the year.

British Cars

To the unbiased observer, the motor car, as presently controlled has done little to spoil the island's charm. To the American tourist the little eight and ten horse-power British models have a charm of their own.

The motor car law has many strange points. No family can have more than one new car in every five years (this is aimed at avoiding the creation of a second hand market and flooding the island with "old wrecks"); if a lorry driver sees his wife standing on the road with a puncture on her bicycle he is forbidden to stop to pick her up; if a lorry or motor car sees a horse

The Taxi Drivers

THE taxi drivers, on the other hand, are equally convinced the forces they are forced to charge are uneconomic and will have to be raised eventually. Nevertheless the carriage is soon likely to remain only as a tourist luxury for the worth of the occasional couple who want to take a quiet moonlight drive.

There are few opponents of another war-produced novelty—votes for women—but there are many Bermudians especially the increasingly active Negro population, who are thoroughly and articulately dissatisfied with the island's whole system of franchise.

At present no one is allowed a vote unless he (or she) owns £50 worth of land in the island and if any body owns £50 worth of land in each parish he is entitled to nine votes.

But even if Bermuda now has nine votes for women, it still stays calculatingly and charmingly behind what less blessed lands call "the times."

And it expects to keep on keeping behind the times for many years to come, to its own profit and the visitors' pleasure.—Reuter.

JAP GENERALS CHARGED

Tokyo, Oct. 28.—Accused of having awakened prisoners-of-war every 10 minutes during an icy cold Japanese winter and forced them to crawl about in the snow, seven former top Japanese commanders will face the Eighth Army Military Commission at Yokohama soon to answer charges of ill-treatment of POWs.

It is alleged that the accused "almost continuously" beat U.S. war prisoners from November 20, 1942 to March 5, 1943, and ordered all prisoners to stand naked in sharp frost for measurement and weighing.—Central News.

PORTUGUESE FILMS

Lisbon, Oct. 29 (UP).—The Portuguese Government has decreed that foreign films may be imported under the condition that Portuguese films are accepted in foreign countries.

The decree forbids the importing of films which have Portuguese dialogue in Brazil or under a reciprocal agreement.

A National Film Protection Fund, with additional tax on each foreign film, was established by the Government to protect the national cinema.

DEVELOPING MANCHURIA

Mukden, Oct. 28.—Mr Chang Ching-niu, Economic Affairs Minister's Special Commissioner in the North-east, informed the British Trade Mission at a welcome reception here to-night that Manchuria would first require industrial machinery and communications equipment before large exportable goods could be produced.

Mr Chang asked for foreign aid to rehabilitate war-torn Manchuria which, according to him, was the richest natural resources area in China. Apart from mass production of soy beans, Mr Chang said, Manchuria possessed considerable deposits of magnesium which were urgently required by almost every country in the world.—Central News.

U.S. ESPIONAGE TRIAL

Warsaw, Oct. 29 (UP).—A Foreign Office spokesman announced to-day that the espionage trial of the United States Embassy translator, Mrs Irena Dmoschowska, will open on Monday, November 4, in the regional military court.

The Embassy announced that a United States State Department observer will attend the trial.

Ehrhardt Bureau Activities

Shanghai, Oct. 29 (UP).—Three former employees of the German Information Bureau in Shanghai testified to-day that Baron Jescow von Puttkamer and Alfred Romain, former members of the German Information Bureau in New York, continued preparation of anti-Allied propaganda leaflets for the Japanese long after the German surrender.

A Chinese employee of a printing firm, testifying before the U.S. military tribunal trying alleged members of the Nazi Ehrhardt Bureau for war crimes, told how Romain came to the office in June, 1945, and ordered to be printed leaflets urging United States soldiers to quit the war. The leaflets were signed "Veterans of Foreign Wars, 39th Street, Kansas City, Mo."

He said Romain ordered the leaflets to be delivered direct to the Japanese Army headquarters for air-dropping.

LONDON STOCKS

Sharp Recovery of Gold Mining Shares

ONLY ROUTINE TRADING

London, Oct. 28.—The Stock Exchange passed a very quiet day. The recent flurry resulting from the selling of local loans and subsequent switching operations has been largely completed and the markets have now returned to more normal conditions.

There was nothing in the week-end news to provide a stimulus for any new business and to-day's trading was largely a matter of routine.

Gold-mining shares were distinctly quieter and were 1/16 lower where altered. Rents were very quiet throughout the day following Friday's statement by the President of the Transvaal Chamber of Mines, where he underlined heavily the difficulties confronting the gold mining industry. Towards the close, however, unfavourable reports that the South African Minister of Finance was calling a meeting with representatives of the gold mining industry led to a sharp recovery in prices and the awakening of professional interest.

Industrial shares were quiet throughout the day and movement was seldom more than a few pence either way with the exception of national stocks and breweries—the latter showed appreciable movements on the day.

Home rails recorded little change and Argentine rails were also quiet apart from a revival of interest in debenture stocks. The foreign market was idle.—Reuter.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Oct. 29.—Wall Street drifted down in dull dealings to-day, with declines ranging from 1/8 to 3/4 points. Some resistant spots persisted, however, as earlier supported gold mining shares continued to advance.

Despite the adverse effect on the market by the C.I.O. President's assertion that the steel industry can afford a "healthy wage rise," steel further recovered from its earlier decline in operations and continued difficulty of accumulating scrap.

The second round of wage demands is already under way in various industries and offset the favourable expectations with regard to the elections, so far as the immediate trend is concerned.—Reuter.

Dow Jones averages were: Rail 49.02, 30 Industrial 169.04; Utilities 24.72; Bonds 122.77; Dow Jones Commodity Index 113.32.—Reuter.

Tokyo, Oct. 29 (UP).—Emperor Hirohito, attending a meeting of the Privy Council to-day, approved the new constitution—the last legal procedure necessary for its promulgation on November 3.

Chiang Confers With Third Party Leaders

Nanking, Oct. 29 (UP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek this morning received the third party leaders in two groups, each meeting lasting almost an hour and presumably discussing the most important of the deadlocked issues in the current informal peace talks.

Speculation was rife this evening as the Third party leaders are submitting their revised mediation proposal to the Government, the Communists and Gen Marshall. While the third party delegates declined to divulge the nature of the revision, pro-Government sources claimed the third parties have accepted to the Communist demand on the topic of local administrations. The Communists are now seeking recognition for the so-called popularly elected liberated area administrations, both in Manchuria and in China Proper.

The pro-Government sources said if the mediation proposal regarding this point was revised in favour of the Communists the Government negotiators would find it difficult to accept.

The Government negotiators were reported to be prodding the third party leaders to secure a Communist promise to participate in the National Assembly.

The sources also indicated that the Government was also prepared to give some more concessions, militarily and politically, if the Communists take part in the Assembly.

Gen Chan Chun Returning

Washington, Oct. 29 (UP).—Gen Chang Chun, Governor of Szechuan Province, is a member of the Chinese Government Commission seeking a solution to differences between political factions, to-day paid a farewell call on President Truman. He was accompanied by the Chinese Ambassador, Dr Wellington Koo, who came here from New York for the occasion.

Gen Chang is leaving this afternoon for San Francisco, where he will take a plane for China. He said he came to the United States six weeks ago for medical attention and had hoped, after receiving it, that he could spend a while in the United States and tour part of it.

He said he received a message from the Chinese Government, however, asking him to return promptly to Nanking which he was doing. He added that his visit to President Truman was purely a courtesy call and nothing important was discussed.

Dr Koo is returning to New York.

BRITAIN MUST BUY FOOD IN U.S. OPEN MARKET

London, Oct. 29 (UP).—The Minister of Food, Mr John Strachey, said at a press conference to-day that the Washington announcement that the United States would have to buy American food on the open market rather than through the Department of Agriculture was bad news for Britain but "we are not unprepared."

Britain anticipates that in the open market prices will be higher and it was unwelcome only in that sense, said Mr Strachey.

URANIUM MINED IN SOVIET ZONE

Berlin, Oct. 29 (UP).—A high ranking German official of the Soviet zonal administration told the United Press to-day that only about 50 persons are working in Germany's only productive uranium mine at Schneeberg.

The mine is being operated by the Russian army as part of the mining now effective throughout the Soviet zone, he added.

Official records show this mine to be not too productive throughout the many years it has been operated, the official said.

American intelligence officers to-day refused to comment or speculate on reports that the Russians are mining uranium in the Schneeberg region near the Czechoslovakian border.

STOLEN BOOKS

China Demands Return From Japan

Shanghai, Oct. 28.—The return of ancient literary works and treasures seized, stolen or purchased by the Japanese as far back as the first Sino-Japanese war of 1894 is being demanded by influential Chinese cultural circles as compensation for what is described as the "incalculable loss of Chinese relics" suffered by China in her eight-year war of resistance.

According to Professor Ho Chang-chun, head of the History Department of the National Central University—the Oriental Cultural Research Institute in Japan alone has a collection of nearly 130,000 Chinese classics acquired in various ways.—Reuter.

London, Oct. 28.—British-French trade talks which were recently suspended in Paris were resumed to-day. These talks will chiefly concern arrangements for French imports of British machinery and chemicals and for British imports of French iron ore and potash.—Central News.

Portuguese Would Like Change Of Regime

London, Oct. 28 (UP).—Travellers from Portugal said to-day that the growing sentiment against the existing government has gripped all classes of society and estimated that at least 80 per cent of the people would like to see a change in regime.

They added, however, that so long as Premier Salazar is backed by the Army and police, opposition, no matter how large, must remain impotent. The Opposition party, which is theoretically legalised, is called Movimento de Unidade Democrática and nicknamed "Mud". It includes university professors, doctors, lawyers, engineers, businessmen, workers and students. The travellers said they far surpassed in numbers supporters of the current regime.

So far MUD has confined itself to issuance of newspapers, circulars and manifestos some of which allegedly have been sent to President Cernom. MUD began as a legal organisation before the general elections in November, 1945. Shortly after the elections the Government refused to continue recognition of the Party's legality, the travellers said, although under the constitution political freedom is guaranteed. Censorship has been reimposed and public meetings are prohibited.

MUD continued to organise, however, and now has units or cells in all the districts of the country. It reportedly plans to assume control of Portugal in future and with that end in view has kept tight an organisation which is constantly expanding. When the Army decided recently to continue its support of the regime MUD lost its only chance to assume power in the immediate future, the travellers said.

The strong farmer support for MUD stems partly from antagonism from the corporate economic system whereby the entire output of some farms is taken by the Government and farmer's food rationed back to them. This system applies to olive oil, maize, wheat and rice. The gremio or corporate system also pervades small industries and has established an all-embracing bureaucracy. Farmers have threatened to stop production unless the corporate system is abolished, it was reported.

Siam-Burma Death Railway Trial

Singapore, Oct. 29.—The condition of prisoners-of-war on the Burma-Siam railway, built by the Japanese during the war, reminded him of the stories he had read about the building of the pyramids or of the galley slaves of the Mediterranean, Mr. J. Gale, a Singapore lawyer, told the War Crimes Court here to-day.

He was giving evidence at the trial of Lt-Gen Ishida, who commanded the work at the railway, and four of his officers.

"There was complete disregard for human life as long as the job was done," Mr. Gale said.

"There was one guard who said that he had never kicked anybody with his boots, because he was a Christian."

Mr. Gale added that owing to bends and gradients, speed on the railway did not exceed eight miles per hour. —Reuter.

RESEARCH IN CHINA

Shanghai, Oct. 28 (UP).—Prof Li Shu-hua of Academia Sinica disclosed to-day that the Academia is buying a US$250,000 cyclotron to start atomic energy research.

ALL-METAL FLYING BOAT LAUNCHED AT BELFAST

The flying boat "Tasman" launched recently, was the first of its kind (the Sandringham class) ordered by Tasman Empire Airways. Photo shows the "Tasman" just after the launching.

Growing Popularity Of The Theatre

SINCE I was in England last, I notice a marked change in the world of entertainment. Most theatres and concerts begin at six-thirty or seven o'clock, and finish not later than nine-thirty. This means that the West End of London, which was a blaze of light with crowds of people milling round theatreland until midnight at least, is now as quiet as a country village by ten-thirty.

This is a very interesting change. It was brought about in the first place, of course, by air raids, which made it advisable for people to be home early. I have spoken to several people in the theatre world about this early closing, and they seem to think it has come to stay, because it is so much more convenient for people to go straight from their jobs to a show or concert.

Another new feature of night life in London is the absence of long queues; it is rarely that one sees a woman dressed for an entertainment. The old glitter and glamour, for the time being, have gone—perhaps for ever. Who knows? It is impossible for a nation to pass through such an experience as these war years brought with them and not to have found new values.

Speaking of new values, the most gladdening experience is to go to a concert and see the "new" audience—so many young people filled with enthusiasm, eagerly drinking in music and drama, poetry readings, and art exhibitions. It is wonderful just to imagine having upwards of thirty theatre companies during one week-end. The Old Vic's second company is installed for the season at the lovely old Theatre Royal—a perfect gem of a playhouse, the oldest in the realm, and rescued from destruction by the Arts Council. In Bristol, as in London, I found a new audience. Here were people learning to love the theatre.

I went from Bristol to visit the British Council House at Stratford-on-Avon, and had a most interesting time there; it is truly international. There were visitors from Holland, Poland, France, China, and Australia, with players from the Memorial Theatre dropping in for lunch. Sir Barry Jackson came, too. He was directing the Shakespeare Festival Company.

Back in London, another pre-war activity that has come to life again is the open-air theatre in Regent's Park—and a season of Shakespearean plays was running merrily there.

Benjamin Britten's New Opera

GREAT excitement was to be found at Glyndebourne Opera House, because of the first performance of Benjamin Britten's new opera The Rape of Lucretia. This opera is quite unique in so far as it has only eight soloists, no chorus, and twelve solo instruments in the orchestra. Benjamin Britten has succeeded in capturing the imagination and interest of all opera lovers since the performance of his extraordinarily successful opera Peter Grimes.

Glyndebourne, as you probably know, is a charming village in Sussex where John Christie has his very beautiful home. A few years before the war, he had the brilliant idea of building the perfect Mozart Opera House in this glorious country setting. He has certainly achieved his ideal, for Glyndebourne now stands for perfection in production and performance. It costs a great deal of money and is one of the best technically equipped opera houses in Europe. Of course, it is an expensive pleasure; in order to enjoy the opera you have to set aside an afternoon and evening, taking a train at three or four o'clock to Lewes and proceeding thence by car for another five miles. The performance begins round about six. There is a break of two hours for dinner, and you arrive back in London at midnight. This idea of the break for dinner is following the tradition of the opera houses in Germany.

"The Bartered Bride"

Authentic Flavour

AT the invitation of Clive Carey, the Director of Sadler's Wells, I went to the closing night of the Opera Season there, and I saw The Bartered Bride. The standard was extraordinarily good. They had the assistance of a Czech producer visiting England; consequently the dressing, ballet, and scenery all carried an authentic flavour.

It is quite impossible in a few minutes' talk to deal adequately with the cultural life that is going on all over Britain, but old favourites were back again, including Elisabeth Schumann, Schenkel, Menuhin, Elman, to mention only a few, with

Present trends in Britain's world of entertainment are noted by the well-known Australian singer, Dorothy Helmrich, who, in referring to the work of the Arts Council in an article in "London Calling" emphasises the fact that, 'what could only be enjoyed by the well-to-do in past days is now available to the masses, if they want it.'

Janette MacDonald and Grace Moore from filmland giving recitals in the Albert Hall.

I recently returned from a tour in the North, which included Edinburgh and Glasgow, Manchester and Liverpool. In each of these cities I concentrated on the Repertory Theatres. The thing of most interest during this tour was my visit to the Citizens' Theatre in the Gorbals district of Glasgow. This movement was started by the famous Scottish playwright, James Bridie, to encourage Scottish writers and also to bring the theatre within the reach of Mr. Everyman. Already, this season, six new plays by Scottish writers have been produced.

The Repertory Movement all over Britain is very active and healthy, and the Arts Council is doing a marvellous job in subsidising and helping in every way the development of these theatres. In addition to the Old Vic Repertory Company in Bristol, there is another in Liverpool.

The extent and range of cultural life in Britain has been so expanded that what could only be enjoyed by the well-to-do in past days is now available to the masses, if they want it. This state of affairs is largely due to the work of the Arts Council—which, as you know, receives a grant of £300,000 from the Treasury, to make it all possible.

ARREST IN VIENNA

Vienna, Oct. 29.—The Soviet authorities announced to-day that they had arrested Dr Franz Bailer, Security Director for Lower Austria, on a charge of issuing an order conflicting with the instructions of the Allied Control Council and regulations of the Soviet occupation authorities. Dr Bailer is accused of having issued an order forbidding public demonstrations throughout Lower Austria.—Reuter.

Tokyo, Oct. 29 (UP).—SCAP has requested the Boeki Cho—the Japanese Government's official Board of Trade—to manufacture 2,160,000 yards of woolen worsted fabrics for export to Far Eastern markets.

The materials will first be produced specifically for export, the previous exports having been from existing stocks.

REMEMBRANCE DAY

EARL HAIG'S FUND HONGKONG.

Remembrance Day will be observed on 11th November. Poppies will be sold on Saturday, 9th November.

It is a day of remembrance dedicated to those who fought and endured so much between 1914/18 and 1939/45. It is a day when the people of the Empire turn their thoughts to Britain and feel that they share that great tradition which she has created and so splendidly maintained throughout the centuries.

It is even more necessary than ever before to secure support for Earl Haig's Fund for the War Disabled. The need is great, and the Committee of the British Legion feel that you will wish to be identified in an endeavour to alleviate the distress of the present and future sufferers.

If you wish to contribute something to so deserving a cause cheques should be made payable to "Remembrance Day Fund" and sent to Messrs J. W. Smith & Co., Windsor House, Hongkong. Donations will be acknowledged in the Press.

Sudan-Egyptian Unity Agreement Reported

Cairo, Oct. 29 (UP).—Britain and Egypt have agreed on a unity of Egypt and the Sudan under the Egyptian Crown providing the present system of Anglo-Egyptian government continues until such time as the Sudanese are ready to determine their own future, according to sources close to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Top-ranking sources believed this information would bridge the gap created by the Egyptian press incomplete reports and Prime Minister Attlee's House of Commons declaration. The sources pointed out that both Mr Attlee's and the Egyptian press reports were true but incomplete and that the misunderstanding arose because of the missing lines.

The text of the allegedly complete draft of the section of the agreement dealing with the disputed question of the Sudan follows: "The two parties (Britain and Egypt) have agreed on unity of Egypt and the Sudan under the Egyptian Crown on condition that the present system, based on the agreement of 1899 and the treaty of 1936 between Egypt and Britain, should continue for a defined period until such time as the Sudanese are ready for self-determination."

Reporters and circles in touch with Premier Sidky Pasha warmed from him a hint that Britain has agreed in principle to unity of Egypt and the Sudan under the Egyptian Crown but did not get a full picture of the proposed agreement. This confirmed Mr Attlee's statement which, however, did not clear up the misunderstanding because the British Premier refrained from giving details.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs, Ibrahim Abul Hudi Pasha, told Egyptian reporters last night that the meetings in London had been merely talks and not negotiations. Premier Sidky's communique after his arrival in Cairo said he had returned from London carrying a new formula which he planned to submit to the Egyptian delegation.

NORTH-WEST FRONTIER

London, Oct. 29 (UP).—The Government of India does not intend annexing the North-west Frontier tribal territories when India achieves independence, Pandit Nehru, declared in the Legislative Assembly this morning. He also intimated that the Government would appoint Indian governor for the provinces.

FREEDOM OF PRESS

freedom of the press than anybody else and for years we have watched this freedom being whittled away. "We have watched combines buying up independent journals and have seen the honourable profession of journalism degraded by high finance big business."

In the past 20 years 47 per cent of the morning papers and a quarter of the evening papers have vanished. Could anyone concerned with the freedom of the press look upon that and be happy?

Mr Davies claimed that journalists could not do their job fearlessly of presenting news and views as long as they were at the mercy and domination of high finance and a group of newspaper proprietors whose power led them to believe their views were sacrosanct and their politics almost divine.

Five Headings
Mr Davies said he could say exactly what they would like to see a Loyal Commission do, under five headings: To inquire into ownership, control and financial of newspapers; to inquire into the extent to which orders of powerful chains of newspapers were creating a monopoly of newspaper ownership; the ability of independent national and local newspapers and periodicals to withstand increased competition from syndicate companies; the influence of financial and advertising interests on the presentation and suppression of news; and lastly, distortion and suppression of essential facts in home and foreign news.

Mr Michael Foot (Labour), another journalist, said that so far as he knew no member of this Government had ever questioned the rights of newspapers to criticize, complain and attack. He said the press lords' theory was that if they attacked Ministers they were upholding the indefeasible rights of Englishmen, but if Ministers attacked the press lords they were attempting to introduce totalitarianism into Britain. Mr Foot alleged that Lord Kemsley's newspapers distorted news and suppressed evidence and were used as vehicles for expressing political opinions of Lord Kemsley.

Distortion of News
He was not denying Lord Kemsley's right if he wished to distort news. "What I do deny is the right to distort news not only in London but in Aberdeen, Cardiff, Bristol and elsewhere. I think it would be possible to have a law which would prevent Lord Kemsley from having a chain of newspapers in which he could distort news."

Mr Foot said the main purpose of the Commission should be to break up newspaper chains. He asked what would happen to the Manchester Guardian, which many people considered the finest newspaper in the country, if the Manchester Evening News, upon which it was partly dependent, was forced to fight a paper started by a huge combine in Manchester. The Manchester Evening News would probably go down, and if that happened the Guardian would go too.

Mr Foot thought there had been a serious decline in the quality of British journalism in the past 40 years, which he attributed to the decline in the power of editors and encroachment of proprietors. That change, he said, reflected a trend which was not insignificant, its importance was so great that some papers, including The Times, Manchester Guardian, Yorkshire Post and Economist, had adopted a new system of proprietorship which protected the authority of the editor and prevented possibilities of amalgamation.

Monopolies
Sir Maxwell Rye, Conservative, speaking for the Opposition, dealt with monopolies, and said: "How can you really say that the public are really concerned when the remedy is submitted to the use of the word monopoly is abuse of the word in a subject where you have a variety of choice." He said that neither Mr Davies nor Mr Foot had made any mention of the fact that the growth of circulation had made it more difficult for any paper to "doct" news.

Mr Maxwell did not accept the remark that journalists had become subservient. He believed that Lord Kemsley or any other proprietor were to suggest that news should be "doctored" the run of journalists to-day would not be party to it.

One had to take in the whole production organisation, with sub-editors and news room, with news coming in so fast that it would be impossible to suggest that a newspaper proprietor could sit in the centre of the web and say "Publish this and don't publish that."

Can Not Be Bribed
Sir Maxwell agreed with what had been said by Mr Ivor Thomas, Colonial Under-Secretary, that, unlike some of their Continental colleagues, British journalists could not be bribed directly. What he put in or left out was dictated entirely by news value, he said.

Sir Maxwell said that an inquiry into a monopoly or restrictive practice was a good thing when a prima facie case had been made out, but no prima facie case had been made out in this instance, or anything within the lines of it. To get an inquiry in Britain, it should never be enough merely that certain people were thin-skinned regarding hostile comment. He said that in large areas of the world to-day freedom of the press was unknown and the population were allowed to read only what their governments determined. "The British Press shines forth as an example of freedom and independence," Sir Maxwell added.

Mr Beverley Baxter, Conservative, and former editor of the Daily Express, said the very fact of a Royal Commission being set up to investigate the activities of the press was a prima facie case of censorship upon the press and a definite warning that something would be done to it which it would not like.

Faithfully Held
Daring with ownership of the press, Mr Baxter said that Con-

GOVT OFFENSIVE AGAINST KURDS?

Teheran, Oct. 29 (UP).—Kurdish sources here said to-day that Persian Government forces began an offensive with tanks and heavy artillery against Kurds in the Sardasht area, and that Ghazi Mohammed, Kurdish Democrat leader, has telegraphed Premier Gavami Sultanchi asking whether the Persian Government wants war. The report could not be confirmed.

Another unconfirmed rumour said that Azerbaijan Premier, Aliyev, had closed the Azerbaijan-Persian border. The Sardasht area is near the Azerbaijan border.

TOKYO WAR CRIMES TRIAL DIFFICULTIES

Tokyo, Oct. 28 (UP).—The cross-examination of a Japanese Army officer to-day at the war crimes trial again proved the apparent futility of trying to make a Japanese witness give damaging testimony against former Premier Tojo and 26 other leading war criminals.

Under questioning by Tojo's attorney, Dr Ichiro Kiyono, former Col Kazuo Horiba seemed only too willing to describe Japan's "Total War Research Institute" on a level of mental exercises in hypothetical problems. Horiba was one of the principal members of the Institute. The President, Sir William Webb, who frequently interrupted dry comments, causing much open laughter in Court, made the Marshal rap sternly with the gavel.

Personally taking over the cross-examination, Sir William told Horiba that it was "hopeless" to suggest to the Tribunal that the Total War Research Institute was just a cultural body. He pointed out that the Institute was based on an Imperial ordinance and given assistance by the best minds of Japan.

U.S. OIL RIGHTS IN SAUDI ARABIA

Jerusalem, Oct. 29 (UP).—Reliable sources said to-day that the Arab Higher Committee intends to cable King Ibn Saud, demanding immediate cancellation of American oil rights in Saudi Arabia as a result of President Truman's reply to the monarch which was banned but unmentioned by the entire Palestine press on Saturday.

It was believed that Arab youth will call a general Arab strike throughout the Holy Land on November 2—anniversary of the Balfour Declaration—to demonstrate their opposition to President Truman's statement.

PUBLISHER SENTENCED

Shanghai, Oct. 28.—King Yung-pai, former publisher of the Ping Pao daily, was sentenced to two years to-day for collaboration with the enemy.

Conservative papers were publicly held, but the Daily Herald was in a very odd position with its body owned by a capitalist combine and its soul by the Trade Union Congress. Speaking about advertising, Mr Baxter said he knew of only one case of an advertiser deliberately trying to affect newspaper policy. The advertiser sent a letter saying: "Unless the Daily Express drops this campaign, we will withdraw all advertising for two years."

Mr Baxter said the Daily Express replied: "Unless you withdraw your letter and apologize we will ban all your advertisements for 25 years."

Mr Baxter commented that they apologized. He added that he believed there was not a newspaper in London that would not take the same attitude.

Another point, he said, was that combines could provide a better foreign service than a single newspaper.

Kemsley Defended
Mr Wilson Harris, Independent Member for Cambridge University, in defence of Lord Kemsley, said Lord Kemsley was a Conservative and owner of Conservative newspapers in London and the provinces. It is really a crime that he should expect his provincial editors to take the Conservative view as in fact his London editor did. An inquiry, he said, would be futile unless it resulted in legislation which he thought would be reprehensible in the last degree.

Opposition also came from a Labour Member, Mr Ernest Thurtle, who said he would be sorry if Mr Morrison, because of his apparent terror of the name of Beaverbrook, were to be so scared as to cause this Parliament to go down in history as the "Press Gag Parliament."

(Mr Thurtle was Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Information during the war.) Mr Joseph Matthews, Labour, thought a Loyal Commission would thoroughly investigate the law of civil libel, which, as it stood, was "an absolute menace to every newspaper man, whether proprietor or owner."

Mr W. J. Brown, Independent Member, said the Government wanted this Royal Commission either for direct curtailment of the liberty of the press, or extension of Government control over it.

Mr Herbert Morrison intervening in the debate, said he thought the case for appointment of a Royal Commission had been made out, but that did not commit the Government to action of any sort thereafter.—Reuter.

WORLD DISARMAMENT

—was an "indication that the Council has possibilities of achieving the goal for which it was established in defending the rights of nations, irrespective of the strength of the adverse parties and without discrimination between small and big states."

"This goal can never be attained in full unless force, or the threat of force, is placed beyond the reach of individual pretensions."

Condemning every form of persecution, the Syrian delegate added: "In very exceptional cases, where refugees cannot be repatriated, any settlement proposed should take into account the freely expressed wishes of the peoples of the country of their proposed settlement."

Dutch Statement
The Netherlands rejected the veto in principle, the Dutch leader said. "At the same time, we are not blind to the realities of the political situation and the imperfections of the international community," he added.

"We remain determined to oppose abuse and excess from any quarter. We will, however, be found ready to acquiesce for as long as is unavoidable in such special prerogatives for the great Powers as do not seem unreasonable."

"We expect the veto to be used only in cases of real importance and clear necessity."

Dr Van Kleffens urged caution in dealing with the Spanish question for fear of contributing involuntarily to consolidation of the Franco regime and hurting the economic well being of the Spanish people.

Opposition to the veto also came from Bolivia's Dr. Adolfo Costa Durela, who said: "We believe we must consider the veto again and if we do not abolish it at least introduce some new arrangement by which it will work better. The existence of privileges is shocking to us who believe in democracy and equality between nations."

Canadian Concern
Mr Stephen St. Laurent (Canada) called on the Security Council and Military Staff Committee to pursue all possible speed in making armed forces available to the Security Council.

The Government and people of Canada are anxious to know what forces Canada should maintain as our share of putting a world force behind world law," he said. "It would be in the interest of all members of the United Nations to see that the Security Council is equipped for the maintenance of world peace and also see that serious consideration is given to the reduction of national armaments so that the world may be ready to accept the conditions of all peoples."

"Now is not the time to revise the Charter, but it is the time for the Assembly to make practical recommendations how the Security Council could more effectively perform its vital functions," the Canadian delegate added.

Gen Carlos Romulo (Philippines) supported the demands for limiting the veto application so that it should not continually obstruct towards a peaceful agreement. "We have no illusions regarding the practicability at present of establishing absolute voting equality among the nations of the world," he said. "Until we are able to establish a world government based on proportional representation there will be valid argument for the veto. But a compromise between these two positions is not only necessary, but possible," he added.—United Press and Reuter.

U.S. ATOM ENERGY COMMISSION

Washington, Oct. 29. (UP).—The five civilians named yesterday by President Truman took over from the Army to-day the most challenging job confronting the nation—control and development of atomic energy with special orders from President Truman to co-operate fully in seeking United Nations world control of atomic energy.

The commission formally took over three plants which manufac-

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN NEGOTIATIONS

Cairo, Oct. 29.—A full meeting of the Egyptian treaty delegations has been summoned for Thursday instead of Saturday, because, according to the Arab Independent newspaper Al Mokattam, the conditions necessitate a quick examination of the position. Events here are believed to be moving rapidly to a decision on the proposals which Sidki Pasha brought back from London.

This decision will affect the immediate future of Anglo-Egyptian relations. Independent newspapers to-day supported Sidki Pasha's appeal to the nation to preserve calm at this important moment.

The Opposition press, which splashed Mr Attlee's statement in which he said no change in the status of the Sudan was contemplated—called on Sidki Pasha to resign and prophesied his early resignation and the fall of the government.

The health of Ismail Sidki Pasha, the Egyptian Premier was giving rise to some anxiety among his friends to-night in view of a medical bulletin which advised some days' complete rest.—Reuter.

CALCUTTA RIOTING DEATH TOLL

London, Oct. 29 (UP).—The Exchange Telegraph reported that 39 incidents of communal rioting occurred in Calcutta between last midnight and noon to-day. Twelve bodies were found and there were four stab-wounds and eight cases of arson.

The dispatch said one police constable was killed and the police opened fire three times to quell incidents.

Wavell To Tour Area
London, Oct. 29 (UP).—The Exchange Telegraph agency reported from New Delhi today that Viceroy Lord Wavell will start a personal tour on Thursday of the districts in East Bengal where communal riots were recently staged.

AUSTRIA AND UNO

Washington, Oct. 28.—The United States will support the application, by Austria for membership of the United Nations on the ground that Austria is a liberated country rather than a former foe of the United States, the State Department announced to-day.

The United States Government recognises Austria for all purposes, including legal and administrative, as a liberated country comparable in status to other liberated areas," said the announcement.—Reuter.

LADY CRIPPS' TOUR

Nanking, Oct. 29.—Lady Cripps and her party to-day reached Yenan, the Chinese Communist capital. They were greeted by Gen Chu Teh, Commander-in-Chief of Eighth Route Army, Madame Mao Tse-tung, wife of the Communist Party chairman, and other senior officials.—Reuter.

GOODWIN WRECK

Deal, Oct. 29 (UP).—Salvagers succeeded in pulling the bow half of the American steamer Helen Modjeska off the Goodwin Sands to-day.

Four atomic bombs at Oak Ridge (Tennessee) Hanford (Washington) and Los Alamos (New Mexico). The chairman, Mr David Lilienthal, paid a salary of $17,500 a year and the others $10,000 each, and they are barred from holding other jobs.

"I don't think we ought to have a long engagement, dear—if we have inflation, my salary isn't going to look very big to your old man!"

STALIN STATEMENT

Mr Byrnes' plan to set up a "German national council." "Both would, in effect, be provisional German governments subject to Allied Control Council supervision. On this point, both Marshal Stalin and Mr Byrnes have gone a stage further than Mr Bevin who at present is only prepared to hand over the administration to the German authorities on a provincial level.

As a result of the surprising similarities of the Soviet and United States official pronouncements on the subject of Germany, it looks as if, when the Council of Foreign Ministers gets down to the essence of the problem, disagreements are more likely over the choice of personalities to work the new arrangements than over the constitutional machinery.

Basic Difficulty

The basic difficulty about merging Germany is that each of the four occupying Powers is at present unable to try out the idea in its own zone. When these are reunited there may be a genuine quadripartite control at the top. But there might be a preponderant influence of one of the powers and it is this state of affairs that the Ministers will be anxious to avoid in New York.

The British press to-day broke out streamer headlines for Stalin's replies. All London's morning editions—except the Times for whose edition the story broke too late—carried the interview on the front page, emphasising Stalin's criticism of Mr Winston Churchill.

Stalin's statement is regarded in London as a death sentence for Britain's effort to restrain Russian use of the veto in the United Nations Security Council and the Foreign Ministers Council.

A Foreign Office spokesman conceded that the British hope of success was based entirely upon voluntary Russian co-operation.

The British questionnaire was the subject of intensive study at the Foreign Office all day, but following lengthy inter-departmental consultations, it was decided to issue no official comment.

The Foreign Office requested a complete transcript from United Press, which was to be transmitted to the Foreign Secretary, Mr Ernest Bevin, aboard the Aquitania in mid-Atlantic.

The edge was taken off the story for front page display in the evening editions, but the Star was the first London publication to editorialise. Stalin's statement to editorialise as "foremost among the incendiaries of a new war" is to re-echo in British ears the tone and vocabulary of the Nazis," the Star said.

"There is really no need for nations, and especially great Power allies, to talk to one another at the top of their voices. Certainly it is now up to Mr Churchill on his part either to substantiate his House of Commons assertion that the Russians have 200 divisions in Europe on a war footing or to withdraw and accept Stalin's figure of 60."

Hopes Strengthened

The Star found Stalin's comment on Germany encouraging and added: "These comments strengthen our hopes that the coming meeting in New York of the Foreign Ministers' Council will not be abortive. If the Big Four are instructed by their governments to implement the new Stalin line for Germany we shall take big strides towards a final settlement with Germany."

Paris newspapers banneted the interview as did the entire Italian press.

In Palestine the interview was hailed as the "biggest news since V-E day."

A United Press dispatch from Prague said the Foreign Office spokesman said that he hoped Stalin
